The recommendation algorithm uses regression to predict implicit ratings for unseen causes by the target user.

The recommendation algorithm also uses cause-embeddings from the classification model to predict cause neighbourhoods of similar causes.

The overall accuracy of the system is a complex function of the machine learning components and of the strategy of the algorithm itself.

This is an information retrieval technique, also referred to as data mining.